The Honorable Joseph R. Biden, Jr. President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20500

Dear President Biden:

On behalf of national organizations representing consumers, family members, mental health and addiction professionals, advocates, payers and other stakeholders, we applaud your leadership and efforts to pass the American Rescue Plan Act, a landmark investment in our nation's health and well-being with dramatically increased federal resources to fight the COVID-19 pandemic and reopen the nation. In particular, we appreciate the substantial new resources it provides to bolster our country's capacity to serve and support the surging numbers of Americans with mental health and substance use needs, including in underserved areas and among at-risk populations.

The pandemic has strained the nation's behavioral health capacity at a time when we have seen dramatic increases in anxiety, depression, overdose deaths, and suicidal ideation -- including in children, adolescents, and young adults. The American Rescue Plan Act reflects Congress' recognition that this growing mental health and substance use crisis will not be simply and quickly resolved with a vaccine.

The American Rescue Plan Act addresses the current crisis by targeting new federal resources for community mental health and substance use treatment services, pediatric mental health access, suicide prevention, behavioral health workforce education and training, as well as mental health and suicide prevention programs for first responders and other healthcare professionals who have served on the frontlines in the fight against the pandemic. It also incentivizes states to implement multi-disciplinary behavioral health mobile crisis teams who can respond when someone is experiencing a mental health or substance use crisis, and dedicates new resources for schools to provide mental health services and supports to help students get back on track. And, importantly, it provides additional temporary federal resources to supplement states' efforts to help low-income older adults and people with disabilities live independently in their communities through Medicaid Home- and Community-Based Services.

Beyond the significant new investment to expand the nation's behavioral health capacity specifically, the American Rescue Plan Act tackles the essential economic, employment, food and housing security, and childcare challenges millions of Americans have experienced as the pandemic spread. Significantly, the American Rescue Plan includes measures to make health insurance coverage available for more Americans, from expanding full Medicaid coverage for COVID-19 diagnostic testing and treatment, increasing health plan subsidies available through the Affordable Care Act, providing new incentives for Medicaid expansion, and extending Medicaid coverage for postpartum women – all important steps to expanding access to health and mental health and substance use treatment for more Americans.
