Dear Chair Aderholt, Ranking Member DeLauro, Chair Baldwin, and Ranking Member Capito,

Thank you very much for your dedication, efforts, and support for continuing to strengthen lifesaving and critical mental health and substance use service access for individuals and families across our country.

Today we, the undersigned, are writing to strongly urge you to include funding for Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinic (CCBHC) Expansion Grants in the FY 2025 Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies appropriations bill at a funding level of $553 million.

As our country continues to face mental health, substance use, and workforce shortage crises, we are immensely grateful for Congress' historic support for this approach to care that data have shown helps to bolster the workforce and strengthen access to timely and quality care for Americans in need. CCBHCs are on the front lines of the nation's crises, improving access for millions of Americans to receive medically necessary mental health and substance use services. Since launching in 2017, CCBHCs have dramatically improved access to a comprehensive range of mental health and substance use services to individuals in vulnerable situations; such services include, for example, 24/7 crisis services as a part of the 988 crisis system, hiring hundreds of new substance use-focused clinicians, expanding medication assisted treatment, and reducing patient wait times. CCHBCs are a successful, integrated, and modern way of delivering 21st century mental health and substance use care to individuals and families.

We also recognize the realities of the current funding environment and wish to uplift that further investment in this program continues to be a critical step in ameliorating the complex crises we face that have serious costs to individuals, families, and our nation if individuals are unable to access the right care at the right time. Making the investment here supports cost savings in other services; one study has shown that for every dollar invested into early care and treatment for mental health and substance use challenges, there is a $2-$10 return in savings on health, criminal and justice, education, and economic costs.¹ CCBHCs are an essential way to reach people with medically necessary care that also helps to stave off costs downstream or in more expensive settings. For example, CCBHCs have been shown to decrease emergency and inpatient hospital admissions, which are particularly costly settings for care that can be circumvented with appropriate care early on. One CCBHC established grantee reported, “... a 75% reduction in inpatient admissions, a 64% reduction in use of emergency department care, and a $99 per-member per month cost savings, [...], that results in $25M overall savings.” Further positively impacting the economy are the implications on the country’s workforce that strengthening the CCBHC model has shown. Recent data show that Medicaid CCBHCs and established grantees hired 11,292 new staff positions, staffing new and sorely needed mental health and substance use jobs across the nation.²

Moreover, data have continuously shown that CCBHCs are making a difference in communities throughout our nation. Today, there are nearly 500 CCBHCs across 46 states and territories (offering services in 40% of all U.S. counties, covering 62% of the nation’s population) serving an estimated 3 million people nationwide. Key findings from across the U.S. include:^{3,4}

- Improved access to services: Medicaid CCBHCs report a 33% increase in the number of individuals served; 60% of CCBHCs report the number of individuals engaged in medication-assisted treatment for opioid use disorder has increased since becoming a CCBHC.
- Timely connection to care: More than 80% of CCBHCs see clients for routine needs within 10 days of the initial call or referral, in contrast to the national average of 48 days.
 - CCBHCs decreased emergency room visits by 55%, reduced mental health care hospitalization by 55%, and decreased homelessness measured in the past 30 days by 31%.
- Strengthening the Workforce: Medicaid CCBHCs have reported increased hiring, adding a median of 22 new positions per clinic.

Funding for FY2025 CCBHC Expansion Grants at the above recommended level would allow for the grant program to grow its reach and enable grantees to continue their successful work in communities across the country. Such funding would support continuation of current CCBHC grantees’ services and would award approximately 161 new grantees, greatly improving access to lifesaving services for more Americans.

We greatly appreciate your time and consideration of the recommended funding for the CCBHC Expansion Grant program. We welcome any questions or further discussion regarding the comments described here; please contact Reyna Taylor, Sr. Vice President, Public Policy & Advocacy, National Council for Mental Wellbeing at ReynaT@thenationalcouncil.org. Thank you very much for your dedication and efforts on this important issue.
